Mission
Making creativity and scholarship visible and exciting for the University and the larger Southern Illinois community

Sharing Scholarship & Style

The University Museum, one of the oldest museums in Illinois, was founded in 1869 with Dr. Cyrus Thomas, a world famous entomologist, as its first director. The University Museum was located on the third floor of Normal Hall when Southern Illinois Normal College opened in 1874.

Over 130 years later, the University Museum provides an exciting immersion into the past, present, and future with changing exhibits on the arts, humanities, and the sciences and displays from the Museum's collections of over 60,000 objects. The Museum is accredited by the American Association of Museums.

The University Museum is a learning adventure for all ages. We serve the entire University community: students, faculty and staff, but we also serve our regional community. Thousands of school children come to see the exhibits each year and to participate in the annual Arts Education Festival.

Become a Friend of the Museum and you will never miss an opportunity to experience new and wonderful things in the world around us - the real objects, different times, different places, and different cultures.

Come journey with us!
